

Nicole Miner is a Military Police Officer in the United States Army. She graduated from the United States Military Academy with a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science. After graduation, she served as a Military Police Officer in various Army units in South Korea, Iraq, Colorado, and Washington. She commanded 130 soldiers serving as Military Police Corrections Officers while in Washington. Nicole was earned a Masters of Arts in Organizational Business Security Management from Webster University and a Masters of Science in Kinesiology with an emphasis on Performance Psychology from California State University, Fullerton. Upon completing her M.S. in Kinesiology she returned to the United States Military Academy to serve as the Executive Officer and an instructor for the Center for Enhanced Performance (CEP). Nicole is responsible for coordinating CEP's budget, operations, and coordinating with the many other departments at West Point. She helps cadets achieve their highest-level performance in academics, military training, or athletic training. She coaches and mentor cadets to become future leaders in the U.S. Army. After three years at West Point, Nicole attended the Army's Command and General Staff College (CGSC) at Fort Leavenworth where she studied operational and strategic planning, leadership, and history. While at CGSC, Nicole was selected to participate in the exchange program with Brazil's ECEME (CGSC). During her follow-on assignment she served as the Fourth Infantry Division Deputy Provost Marshal while deployed to Europe and then she served as the Operations Officer (S3) for the 759th Military Police Battalion. Nicole currently holds the position of Branch Chief and the Army's newest marketing organization, Army Enterprise Marketing.